BIRGER SWAGGERS
AS HE IS TAKEN TO MURDER TRIAL

Fondles His Children and
graphers Today

Benton, Ill., July 6—(AP)—Charles Birger, southern Illinois gang leader, went on trial in Franklin county circuit court today for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City.

Surrounded by heavily armed deputy sheriffs and with a troop of small boys at his heels, Birger walked from the jail a short block to the courtroom.

With him, as he entered the courtroom, were Art Newman, his former pal and chief lieutenant, and Ray Hyland, known as "Izzy, the Jew", who are jointly charged in the Adams murder.

Birger Adopts Swagger

Birger, wearing a light gray suit and gray necktie, his hair parted neatly, swaggered a little. But Newman, subbed in blue and Hyland, a furtive youngster, seemed to feel the solemnity of the moment.

The courtroom was crowded. Scores of citizens in shirt sleeves, blue shirted, suspended countermans sat under the high tin ceiling. Old farmers and young coal miners, row upon row, looked at the gangsters as Sheriff James Pritchard and his deputies led them in. Women and children strained forward to stare at the notorious Birger and the almost as notorious Newman and Hyland.

Young Mrs. Bernice Birger, wearing a pink dress and mothering the gang leader's two little girls by a former marriage, sat within the rail. Posed for Pictures

Birger saluted his children affectionately and, with a child on either knee, posed for photographers in the courtroom.

Within the rail also sat Mrs. Art Newman, looking none too confident, but loyal to her husband. Here and there other relatives of the accused were watching, and being watched.

Circuit Judge Miller called court to order and attorneys for the state and defense went into conference. Precautions to prevent disorder were taken by authorities for the opening of the trial.

Expects No Trouble

Sheriff Jim Pritchard expected little trouble, however, Birger, who is a former coal miner, gambling house and restaurant operator, is charged with planning the murder of Adams and Newman and Hyland are alleged to have been accessories.

The gang chieftain is known to have been an arch enemy of Mayor Adams because, Birger had contended West City was the stronghold for the rival Shelton gangsters.

The trial is one of the largest ever held in southern Illinois, and, because of the intense interest, county authorities have taken every precaution to guard against any demonstration. Thirty special deputies have been sworn in.

It was considered unlikely that any of the venturers would be called for examination today, as it was intimated that motions would occupy most of the time.

Derrs are Home from

A. S. Derr and wife returned Sunday from an 8000 mile motor trip, traveling through twenty-nine states. They spent the winter in Florida. On their way from Florida to Pennsylvania they stopped over in Washington, D. In Pennsylvania they visited at Manheim, Lancaster county with their daughter, Mrs. Grace Myers, who with her four children, returned with her parents to spend the summer here. Mr. Derr declared that everything is in fine condition through the East. The crops are good and everybody seems to have plenty of money.

BUSY NEAR ASH-
TON, FRANKLIN GR

Sheriff Advises Owners to Begin Shooting at Thieves

More than 500 spring chickens weighing about one and one-half pounds have been stolen from the vicinity of Franklin Grove and Ashton since the first of the month according to reports of poultry raisers which have been filed at the office of Sheriff Ward T. Miller. It is believed that a well organized gang of chicken thieves has been carrying on extensive raids on chicken farms in that vicinity and disposing of the birds to Chicago commission houses. "Equip the chicken houses with electric alarms and begin shooting," was the sheriff's reply to several poultry raisers who have reported heavy losses at his office. The sheriff stated today that following a former order to shoot, that the practice of chicken stealing practically ceased for a few weeks, but during the last two weeks, the reports indicate, thieves are more active than in several months.

AWAIT VERDICT
IN TRIAL OF TWO OF BIRGER GANG

State Demands Death on Penalty for Gowan
and Millich

Marion, Ill., July 6—(AP)—Conscious of the unenviable reputation it has acquired in the eyes of the world the past five years, Williamson county today was anxiously awaiting the verdict in its first gang murder case since the Shelton brothers and Charlie Birger made it a warring ground for rival gangs. "Bloody" Williamson is out to wipe the stains from its name, State Attorney Arlie O. Boswell declared to the jury last night in his closing plea for the death penalty in the case of Ray Millich and Eural Gowan, Birger gangsters, charged with killing their fellow Birgerite, Ward Jones, at the Birger roadhouse, "Shady Rest", last October.

Nearly one hundred written instructions, that must be read by Circuit Judge Hartwell, intervened this morning before the case could be given to the jury of coal miners and farmers.

For more than an hour last night the jurors followed every word that came from the prosecutor, his finger working up and down in scorn before the downcast 19-year-old Gowan and the seasoned Millich. His remarks included a denunciation of the "infamous and marauding Charlie Birger" and gangsters in general and an appeal for a vindication of the good name of Williamson county.

City Judge Cook of Herrin, counsel for Gowan, argued nearly three hours in the afternoon, pleading for a verdict based on the facts in the case and not on popular prejudice.

UTILITIES COMPANIES HAVE BUSINESS BEFORE CITY DADS
AT MEETING TUESDAY EVENING

I. N. U. and Dixon
Home Telephone Co.
Make Requests

C. J. McLean of the engineering department of the Illinois Northern Utilities Company appeared before the city council last evening with plans and specifications covering the proposed construction of a high power line from Dixon to Belvidere and Beloit, Wis. The proposition was thoroughly explained as to the construction of steel towers which will carry the high tension lines from both of the Dixon plants, together with their location on the south bank of the river. No formal action was taken by the council, the matter being tabled until the meeting next week.

Manager Louis Pitcher of the Dixon Home Telephone company appeared before the council and filed an application for the granting of a new franchise for the company over a period of 25 years. The matter was tabled for two weeks at the request of the company's representative. Manager Pitcher explained that the company had rebuilt its local exchange and line system, knowing the short life of the present franchise. These improvements have increased the efficiency of the service to the subscribers and it is anticipated that the citizens will show their appreciation in voting to grant the new franchise, Manager Pitcher said. He also outlined the program of improvements which the company anticipates installing next year.

In renewing the franchise it will be necessary to hold a special city election and the matter was tabled for further consideration of the council.

TAFT, ROUNDING
OUT SEVENTIETH
YEAR, VERY HAPPY

Says He's Not Fitted for Politics: Likes His Associates

By John L. Suter

Mr. Suter has been a Washington correspondent for more than 40 years. Since 1921, he has been a member of the Washington staff of The Associated Press, assigned to the supreme court.

Washington, July 6—(AP)—Untroubled by the maddening swirl of politics, William Howard Taft is rounding out his seventieth year happier in his daily work than he ever has been before.

He looks back over the two-score years of public service, the only man who has been 16th President and Chief Justice, and says he does not consider that he was "fitted" for politics, and that he would rather be where he is today than in the White House.

He is so well satisfied, and so greatly encouraged over the improvement in his health, that he has no intention of leaving the bench when he becomes eligible for retirement in 1931, when he completes ten years service as Chief Justice.

These disclosures were made by Mr. Taft just before he left recently for his summer home in Canada.

Reference to T. R.

As he approached his comparison of the two great offices he has held, Mr. Taft made a passing reference to Theodore Roosevelt. Although he has near him no memento of the years of his association with Roosevelt, he mentioned in his customary good nature the man who was his staunchest political friend and then his bitter opponent. "I do not care for politics," Mr. Taft said, and with a smile that rippled into a hearty laugh, added:

"Not that I have no interest in such matters, but I am not fitted for the hustlings and controversy."

"I do not mind what is sometimes called the monastic life of the bench," he said. "I have most delightful associates in the court, and very pleasant relations with members of the bar. The truth is you are more isolated in the presidency. While a president sees a great many people, he cannot avoid defending himself against too great familiarity. He has got to be reserved and careful."

Nerve-Wrecking Job

"The responsibilities of the Presidency are nerve-wrecking. The difference between the exacting of the two offices is that in work on the bench you have the assistance of your colleagues, the benefit of oral arguments by counsel and of briefs submitted on both sides."

"And you have control of time for careful study. In the presidency, you often have to make a decision on the instant or overnight, or in so short a time that the risk of mistake is great, and then you have not the benefit of argument on both sides, often no argument on either, and you cannot always consult your cabinet."

"The character of work on the bench, its steadiness and the regularity with which you can order your life, if you do not over-do the social part, makes it consistent with long life, hard as the work is."

Can Have Real Vacation

He added that he now can enjoy a "real vacation," something he could not do while President.

He continued that his doctors' advice not to overtax his heart had led him to give up golf, to abandon writing his court opinions in long hand, and to have an electric elevator installed in his home.

Asked what he selected for his recreational reading, he replied that autobiography was his favorite literature.

"I do not care particularly for novels, except by certain authors. I do not mind detective stories. I can get a good one, and have read many."

DIXON, ROCK FALLS
YOUNG FOLKS HURT
IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Cars Collided on State Highway North of Amboy Monday

Miss Helen Insley, Harry Insley and Donald Whitte of Rock Falls, and Miss Dorothy Hendricks of Dixon, suffered painful injuries on Monday night in an auto accident on the highway one mile north of Amboy. The other occupants of their car, Paul and Frank Hendricks of Dixon, escaped without injury, but were badly shaken.

The accident occurred about 7 o'clock as the party was returning home from a trip to Starved Rock, where they had spent the day. The young people were traveling in a Stearns-Knight touring car, driven by Harry Insley.

They were driving along at a moderate rate of speed when they met a string of three cars from Chicago and Joliet, enroute from spending the holiday in this vicinity. As they were passing the machines, the second car in the string, a seven passenger Buick sedan, attempted to go around the car ahead, and crashed into the side of the Stearns-Knight. Both cars were turned in the opposite directions from which they were going, by the force of the collision, before the drivers could apply the brakes.

Dragged Along Pavement

Miss Insley and Mr. Whitte were thrown from the rear seat of the car and dragged several feet on the pavement by the wheels of the car. The former suffered a severely bruised right arm, hip and ankle and Mr. Whitte received injuries to his arms and wrenched his back.

Mr. Insley, the driver of the Stearns-Knight, was cut in several places about the face and Miss Hendricks received a badly bruised limb and was cut from the broken glass in the other car.

(Telegraph Special Service)

Mendota, July 6—A Hudson coach owned by Sam Zitone, who was returning to his work in Dixon, was demolished by a fast Chicago, Burlington & Quincy train as he was passing over the grade crossing tracks Friday night. Zitone, seeing the approaching train, jumped and left the car, which had stalled on the tracks to its fate. After the fast train had plowed into the car and tossed it to the side of the right of way, it was little more than a tangled mass of twisted metal.

F. J. McLarnon, Amboy resident, damaged his Chevrolet coupe Monday night when he was struck by a Nash automobile, the driver of which he did not know. The accident occurred beyond the city limits of LaSalle, and the damaged car was taken to a garage in that city for repairs.

ART EXTENSION COMMITTEE,
ONE HUNDRED STRONG, WILL SPEND FRIDAY EVE IN DIXON

E. N. Howell of the Dixon Park Board has been advised that about a hundred members of the Illinois Art Extension committee will spend Friday night in Dixon, on their tour of northern Illinois, and a dinner is being arranged for them at the Elks Club Friday evening, to which Dixonites are invited, and which all who are interested in art and natural beauty are asked to attend. Reservations for the dinner should be made at once so the committee can prepare.

Lorado Taft, noted sculptor and artist, will be one of the visitors, and as Mr. Taft is especially enthusiastic over the scenery of the Rock River Valley, it is fitting that many local people should welcome him to Dixon.

The members of the committee will have breakfast at the Dixon State Hospital Saturday morning before leaving for Grand Detour, Oregon, Byron and Rockford.

NAVAL CONFERENCE
AT STANDSTILL ON CRUISER QUESTION

Solution Lies in Capitals of Nations Cooperating

Washington, July 6—(AP)—Geneva reports that the naval conference had reached a virtual deadlock over cruiser tonnage failed today to draw comment in any official quarter here, but there were increasing intimations that Washington was very unlikely to accept a cruiser figure in excess of the 400,000-ton maximum mentioned by the American technical delegates.

Geneva, Switzerland, July 6—(AP)—The naval conference, with the United States, Great Britain and Japan participating, is at a standstill.

The next word lies with Washington, London and Tokyo. They must help or even direct the solution of the cruiser problem, which, if not settled, means collapse of the conference.

Apparently, Washington must tell London that the new maximum cruiser figures submitted by Hugh S. Gibson embody America's last upward concession, if Washington really means this, and Tokyo must let Downing Street know how Japan regards cruiser limitations.

The situation is that the American delegation has told the British that limitation can only be achieved by keeping cruiser strength within 400,000 tons, which is some 50,000 tons higher than the present American cruiser strength.

U. S. Position.

The Americans say, in effect: "We do not object to you having 70 odd cruisers, if you need them, but distribute the tonnage so that the total will not create a big excess over your present tonnage."

The British answer:

"We need about 70 cruisers, but if you Americans insist upon keeping large-size cruisers, then we must naturally build our cruisers up to maximum size when the time comes to replace the old ships, some thirty of which are 5,000 tons displacement or even less. If you will construct smaller ships, it will automatically bring down our total tonnage figures."

Small Ships For Defense

"Large warships symbolize aggression; small ones defense. We need only small cruisers to protect our trade routes and food supplies. England simply cannot run the risk of being isolated. And anyway, we didn't start this naval race."

The only practical solution now in sight seems to be a private agreement with Great Britain that she will continue to build a certain number of the small cruisers.

Private meetings today between Mr. Gibson and Viscount Ishii, of Japan, and later between Mr. Gibson and A. C. Bridgeman, British delegate, failed to improve the existing critical situation. The parity, according to reliable reports, was rather lively.

Too Much Sunshine for Corn, State Man Says

Springfield, Ill., July 6—(AP)—Too much sunshine and not enough rain during the last week was the opinion of Clarence J. Root, meteorologist of the United States department of agriculture, in the weekly weather and crop report today. The weather has been favorable for harvesting and threshing operations.

Corn is late and very uneven, but has made good progress. Winter wheat is being harvested in the central counties and threshing has begun in the extreme south. Oats are heading in the north; they are being cut in the south. Hay fields are good. Apples and peaches are going to market from southern commercial orchards.

Miller as early as possible in order to secure one of these valuable trips.

The girl, who was among a great crowd which had gathered near the restaurant at which the American aviators were luncheon guests of the Anglo-American Press Association, made her way up the stairway and announced that she had a bouquet.

The ushers demurred, but the girl insisted, and finally succeeded in carrying the violets to the Commander. The Commander rose, blushed, took the bouquet hesitatingly and then, on a sudden impulse, kissed the girl upon both cheeks amid vociferous applause.

WOMEN'S WORK ON FARM IS DEEPLY ESSENTIAL

Chicago—The farm woman is co-operative agriculture's greatest ally, the editor of the Dairywomen's League News, D. C. Carter, told the American Institute of Co-operation today. She is an active partner on the farm, he said, and serves to keep her husband interested and energetic in his co-operative affiliations.

GUESTS AT STACKPOLE HOME OVER THE FOURTH

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Stackpole entertained over the Fourth Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Stackpole and two sons of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Pierce and two sons of Ashton.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

Small, mild cigars are having a large sale among young women who find cigar smoking becoming altogether too common. This statement comes from a tobacconist at the London tobacco trade exhibition. He explains that a woman will not yield her cigar for a pipe, because pipe smoking is a bit harsh for a woman, but that a small and mild cigar makes just the right sort of an after dinner smoke for her. Now watch the feminine elders get excited, and watch the feminine youngsters giggle at 'em! The youngsters know that it's all only tobacco selling propaganda. The elders always swallow these false alarms and start legislation again.

SPARE TIRE SANDWICHES

Just as "the spare tire" idea has taken hold in the hose realm with "us girls" buying three of a kind in readiness for the evil day when the "runs" come, now the "spare" idea has invaded the world gastronomic. Three slices of bread make a sandwich now. Two is so plebeian!

RADIO WIDOW

A "radio widow" hailed her erring spouse into court, charging non-support. She claimed that her shield and buckler spent all his earnings on the radio, even if they went hungry and the rent was unpaid. And as for any company in the home—"why judge, I haven't heard one peep out of him since he got that contraption."

The radio widow complaint is so symbolical of the age in which we live that it is hardly news. Our day's standard of living calls for automobiles, radios, overstuffed furniture, grand pianos and phonographs, orthophonic only, electric washers and ironers, vacuum cleaners, electric fans, toasters, percolators, fireless cookers, tomatoes out of season and chiffon-to-the-top hose, even if we don't have money for the butcher and baker and grocer and gas and light and water and telephone man.

GENTLEWOMEN

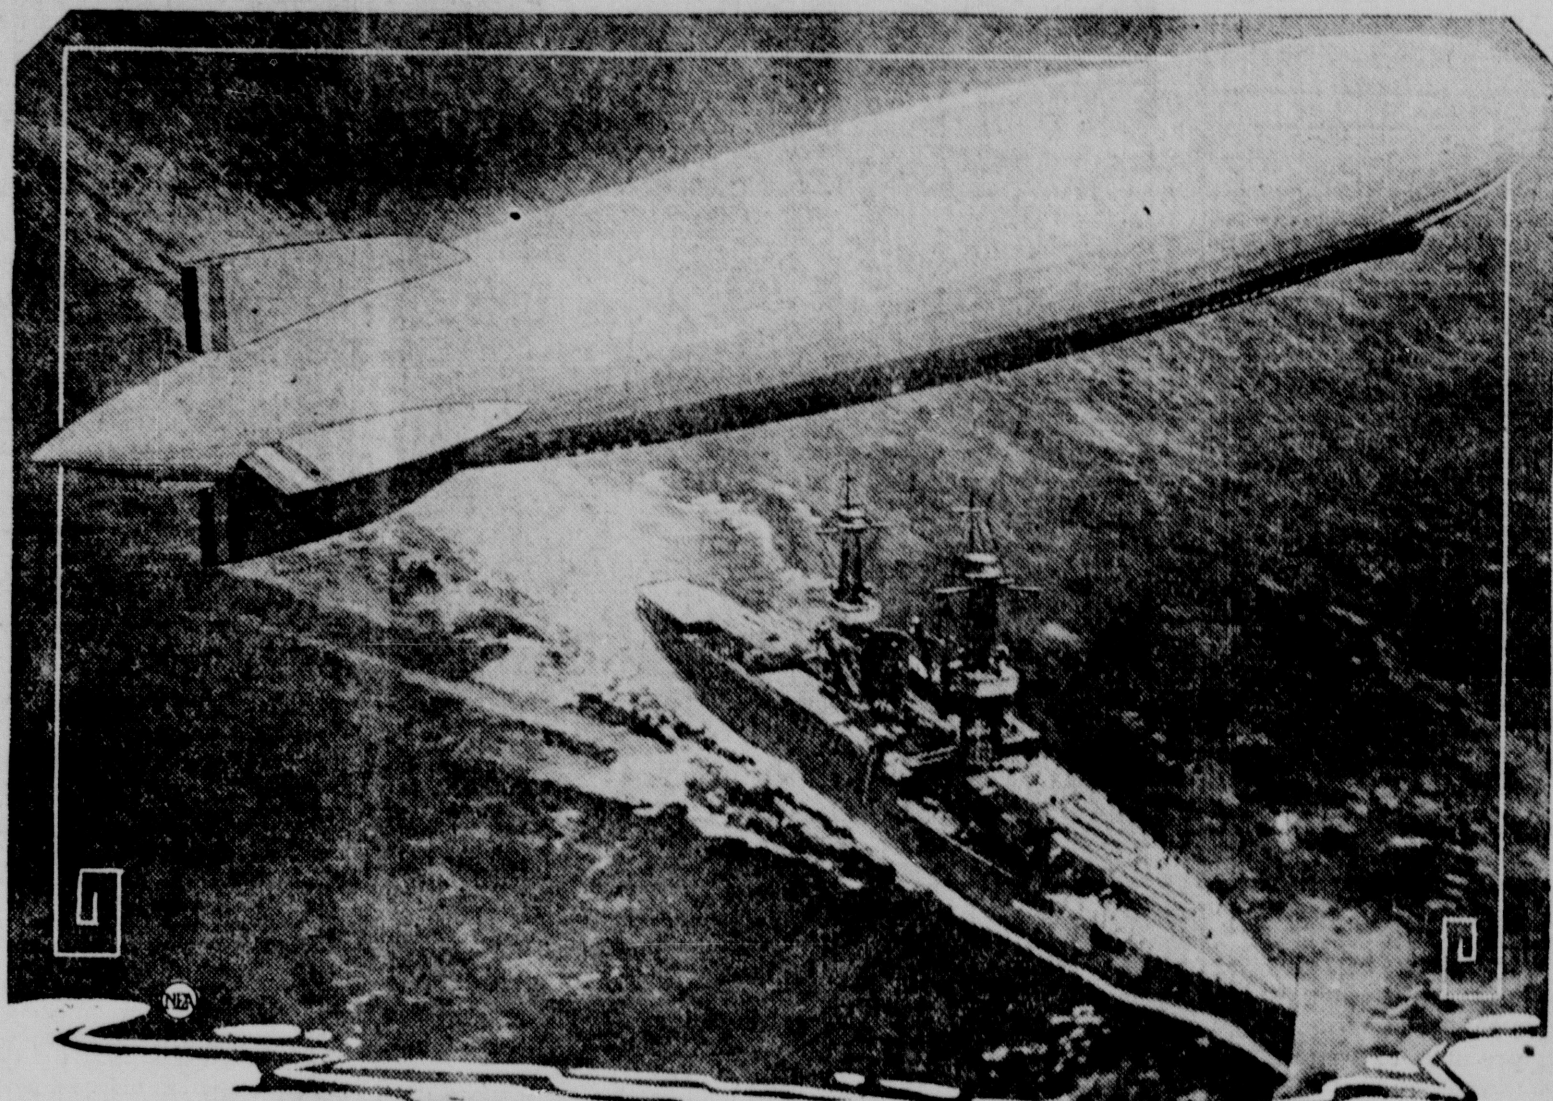

Feminine gentleness is being fostered by the Fascist party. We hear that the 150,000 Italian women who belong to that party are forbidden to wear the black Fascist shirt which they once wore. Mussolini explains that "the black shirt is too closely associated with memories of fierce fighting to be suited to feminine gentleness." And what a hit that will make with the male world which insists that women stay "gentle" even if they do nothing to make the world which women meet a place which fosters this gentleness. "Business makes a woman so hard!" some men remark, they being the very ones who make business conditions so that women are forced into the fighting, "hard" role.

HER FIRST MOVIE

An 80-year-old woman went to her first picture show the other day. The picture had been carefully selected by those who took her. It was a picture put on by a W. C. T. U. chapter. I think it was Harry Langdon in "The Strong Man." When the old lady went home she commented, "No wonder girls are wild. If my girl went to picture shows I'd turn her up and spank her."

REFRESHING

Somehow one finds the old lady a refreshing contrast to other coy and sprightly young things of 80 or 90 who, upon being taken to a picture show, are always depicted as sitting on the edge of their chairs with tense excitement, and saying "where have you been all my life, movies?"

After all, such story book reactions always seemed a bit forced. We are all products of our own age. I can understand and better like the old lady who scoffs movies than her contemporaries who insist on taking a modern viewpoint for their own, when it fits them no better than bobbed hair and lipstick.

"CAL" HAD GREAT FUN AT RODEO IN BELLE FOURCHEE

Smiled Happily at the Familiar Greetings of Cowboys

Rapid City, S. D., July 6—(AP)—The tumult of one of the west's greatest rodeos still reminding him of the pleasures which belong to the country of his summer residence, President Coolidge turned to more quiet things today, as he resumed the routine of his life in the Black Hills.

Before the end of the week, he will have had the opportunity of learning the latest developments in Mexico, as Ambassador Sheffield was expected late tonight.

At the Belle Fourchee round-up yesterday, Mr. Coolidge saw a reproduction of western life as it was about a decade ago.

One of his happiest moments seemed to come when his favorite entry, Dakota Clyde Jones, rode to victory on a busting broncho and later captured the wild horse race.

The entire gathering of many thousands was in a holiday mood and laughed with the president whenever a cowboy rode past swiftly and shouted "Hello Cal." The president smiled broadly, too, when the announcer designated a busting broncho entry as "Cal Coolidge."

A NEW MURDER DEFENSE.

Clarence Darrow, defender of Loeb and Leopold, has expressed astonishment that Henry Gray and Ruth Snyder were put before the jury as two normal persons who deliberately planned and carried out the murder of Albert Snyder.

The intimation is that had the defense attorneys been clever enough, they could have secured an acquittal for their clients, because, as Darrow says, this "atrocious crime" was the act of two persons under "pressure of some tremendous nervous excitement."

What was this outside influence, this nervous excitement which caused their action?

Gray and Mrs. Snyder were in love.

Now here is a new line of defense for criminal lawyers. It will not take much of a nerve specialist to give expert testimony to the effect that people in love are not responsible for their actions. Let the person charged with no matter what heinous crime but admit that he was in love, and the way will be paved for a speedy discharge from the bar of justice.

This "in love" plea will beat the insanity plea all hollow. By all means, Mr. Darrow should be given a chance to try his novel defense plea in some murder trial that has had plenty of publicity. Establish one court precedent in the form of an acquittal on the grounds that love is a form of insanity, and the jails of the country can be emptied in a jiffy.

It is surprising that no criminal lawyer ever thought of this before.

DOWN WITH BACHELORS.

There used to be an old "wheeze" to the effect that nobody loves a fat man. Nowadays in Europe it would seem that the slogan is—"Nobody loves a bachelor."

As a result of the war, in almost every country in Europe there is a tremendous surplus of women over men. Wherefore statesmen and politicians look upon bachelors with no kindly eye.

It has at various times been rumored that Mussolini contemplated taxing heavily any bachelor who persistently and stubbornly stuck to single blessedness. Stepan Raditch, leader of the Croatian peasant party in Yugoslavia, has gone even farther. He says that a bachelor cannot be an honest politician. The bachelor, says the Croat leader and philosopher, tends towards irresponsibility and frivolity. Life is not a serious business for him. Wherefore the Raditch party has given all bachelors a grim alternative—marriage or expulsion.

Though social welfare workers still persist in criticizing the present day flapper for some of her alleged excesses, health experts are now almost unanimous in giving the much maligned little lady a rather generous O. K. She has taken off her corsets; she has taken on more exercise; she uses more gumption in the choice of her diet. A Chicago doctor recently found, however, that this genus flapper was still doing itself one great injustice—submitting to one weakness which is causing physical injury. This is the persistent custom of wearing high-heeled shoes. The chances that the style will fade seem rather slim.

COMPULSORY MOTOR INSURANCE.

Massachusetts is beginning to survey results of compulsory insurance for automobiles. The law was passed about a year ago, and statistics now are becoming available. The object of the insurance primarily is for recovery of damages from drivers otherwise irresponsible. The motor department of the state, however, is undertaking to determine what the effect is upon the number of accidents and fatalities.

Decrease in the number of accidents is anticipated to some degree through operation of a clearing house service, which will keep a record of demerits, determining the persons who are considered bad risks.

The law has been in effect long enough to witness the passing of "fly-by-night" insurance companies organized to take advantage of the requirements.

Although there is temptation to make definite deductions from records of operation of the law during the short term of its existence, it is improbable that anything of value can be given for experience tables until the statute has been in operation for a period of years. It is reported that there were predictions that compulsory insurance would lessen the number of car owners who would register in the state. The actual result has been that the number May, 1 was 6000 greater than on the same date last year.

We are approaching such control of motor vehicles and the lead of states most successful in regulation will be followed. It is probable that eventually we shall see a law requiring all drivers to obtain licenses, which may be revoked for various offenses.

A Chicago newspaper is seeking "the best known professional woman in the country," in the belief she lives in Chicago. Let's see, where is Peggy Joyce now?

Wear sunburn, advises a doctor. My good man, the jails are full enough now without such advice.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The Tinymites rode 'round and 'round. The music made a pretty sound. "Oh, my, I think this wonderful," yelled Carpy, with delight. "It's just like riding on a farm, except that here there is no harm. The horses are made out of wood, and hence they cannot bite." The Princess watched them ride awhile. They circled 'round for 'bout a mile, and then she waved her little hand. The merry-go-round stopped short. "Oh, gee," said Scouty, "must we quit? With me this thing has made a hit. I wish that we could ride some more. It's really dandy sport."

"Why sure you can," the Princess cried. And then they had another ride. This time poor little Clovey, grew as dizzy as could be. He shouted, "I will be a wreck!" And then he grasped his horse's neck "I'll have to hang on tight, or I will tumble off," said he.

Their interest in the riding grew because a song that they all knew began to float out on the air; a very pretty thing. The Tinymites joined right in the tune. The Princess laughed, 'cause pretty soon she glanced around and noticed that they'd all begun to sing.

The horses on the merry-go-round, I guess, objected to the sound of all the Tinymites' voices, 'cause they all pricked up their ears. The Princess cried, "You'd better stop that singing or you'll all go flop!" And then, what happened very quick just added to her fears.

Before the Tinymites had a chance to quit, the beasts began to prance. They jumped around so much the Tinymites knew it wasn't play. "Be careful, now," the Princess cried. "This well that you know how to ride." And, at that moment, all the horses, jumped and ran away.

(A magic rope lassoes the horses in the next story.)

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is chapter 79 of the series of articles written by an ex-soldier who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Telegraph.

CHAPTER LXXIX

It is just possible, after all other causes have been reviewed, that a heavy downpour of rain won the war. Nine years ago, on the night of July 17, the 1st and 2nd American Divisions, the Moroccans and a division of French were concentrated in the Forest of Retz near Villers-Cotterets. They were to go over the top on the morning of July 18 at 4:35 o'clock in the great counter-offensive suggested by General Pershing, ordered by Marshal Foch, and executed by General Mangin, the attacker, who directed operations from an observatory in the top of a tree three kilometers from Villers-Cotterets.

It was a surprise attack. The Germans had fallen down in their thrust across the Marne and had been bent on by General Gouraud's "Elastic Defense" in the Champagne. Gen. von Hutier and the German high command were taking their breath preparatory to rushing up more shock divisions. But Foch took the initiative. The order went out on July 15. That night the 1st and 2nd Divisions rode in French trucks. Orders were received in the afternoon to move up—and that night—the night of the 17th of July—it rained.

German airplanes, which on the night of the 16th had made it necessary to march through the fields instead of on the roads that stretched out like ribbons in the moonlight—detected nothing.

Three divisions of troops and all the materials of war went along through the heavy thunderstorm and men were unaware that 57,000 soldiers, 5000 animals and 3000 vehicles were concentrating for the great drive on Soissons which was the first of the series of German defeats that brought the war to a close.

Beat Richthofen to It

The First Division was in position in plenty of time. So were the Moroccans. But the 2nd failed to arrive. The barrage was due to cut the night at 4:35. The attack could not be halted. Finally, just before the zero hour, the 9th and 23rd Infantry appeared. The last 100 yards through the woods was done on the run, the line was formed, the barrage shrieked and the drive was on.

So—

It rained the night of the 17th of July on the Soissons plain. The next day it was clear and Baron Richthofen's "Circus" of airplanes appeared and drove every allied plane from the sky. Had that night been clear Mr. Richthofen might have won on the job. If he had—well—he wasn't—so that's that. But, who knows, maybe that heavy downpour of rain won the war.

SAINT and SINNER

Everything seemed to go wrong that Saturday morning following Cherry's impromptu bridge party. Mrs. Lundy was not on hand at half past seven as usual to prepare breakfast. Faith, taking her place, found that the cream was sour and that there was no fruit in the ice box. Bob, drinking black coffee, was obviously brooding over the rejection of his plans for the new public library.

Joy appeared at breakfast with reddened eyes and nose, that advertised one of her frequent colds. Poor old Jim Lane, sensing the general unhappiness of the family, seemed to try to shrink into nothingness inside his rumpled, grease-spotted, "everyday" suit. But he "dunked" his toast in his coffee, and Faith, flushed and miserable over the inadequacies of the breakfast, flinched as she saw her husband's quick, frowning glance at her father.

When Bob and her father had left, Faith prepared as tempting a tray as possible for Cherry, who no longer made any effort at all to leave her bed before noon.

When Faith carried the tray into Cherry's room, she found her sister sitting up in bed, with a huge scrapbook opened across her hunched knees. It was the book into which she had pasted hundreds of columns of news and feature stories about herself and the trial in which she had played the leading role, as defendant on the charge of murder.

"Hello, darling!" she called to Faith. "I was just looking over this scrapbook on the trial. It all seems like a dream, doesn't it? It's hard to realize that just a few months before I was the most famous girl in America—my name on every man's tongue. And now—buried out here on Scenicity Boulevard, with scarcely a friend to my name! Page Dad to say for me, 'Such is Life!'" Her musical voice had a bitter edge to it.

Faith adjusted the wicker tray rack across the small body, and poured the coffee, murmuring apologies for the absence of cream and orange juice.

After Cherry had eaten a piece of French toast with strawberry jam and had listlessly sampled the cod-died egg which Faith had been at such pains to prepare for her, Faith

FLOOD RELIEF CAN NOT BE EXTENDED TO FLOODED LAND

ATTY. GEN. CARLSTROM

Holds Part of Bill of Recent Legislature is Unconstitutional

Springfield, Ill., July 6—(AP)—Doubting constitutionality of the $1,500,000 flood relief bill, Attorney General Carlstrom today advised Leslie Small to make no contracts for reclamation of flooded lands as provided in the bill.

Small, director of the state department of purchases and supplies, is vested with administration of the bill. Carlstrom called attention to an "apparent defect" in the bill's title and an "apparent violation of the constitution."

Provision is made in the bill for restoration and reclamation of flooded and inundated land, to which the title is "an act making an appropriation for emergency relief for flooded areas."

Can't Take in Lands.

Giving an emergency relief, Carlstrom said, could hardly be extended to include reclaiming and restoring flooded lands.

"Furthermore the constitution specifies that the state never become responsible for liabilities or in any manner extend its credit for public corporation, association or individual," Carlstrom continued.

"While no question would arise," he said, "as to the right of our department to restore land, restoring or reclaiming lands owned by private parties presents a more serious problem."

Refuses Approval.

"By a reason of apparent defect in the title and by reason of the part that appears to violate the constitution, I am not prepared to hold the act free from constitutional objections. These objections would not apply, however, to other provisions of the bill."

"It would appear to me that contracts let by your department under this bill should not include work that has to do with the reclaiming and restoring of inundated lands."

YANKS STARTING WEST WITH LEAD OF DOZEN GAMES

While Pirates and Cubs Continue Their Hot Fight for Lead

BY THE AP
Finishing their home stand with a first place lead of twelve and one-half games, the Yankees today were off for their second western invasion. Washington fell by the wayside yesterday, 7 to 6, for the third time in succession.

Boston extended its winning streak to two games by rallying in the ninth to defeat Philadelphia, 6 to 5. Connie Mack used four pitchers.

Every St. Louis man got at least one hit in the Browns' 17-8 victory over Detroit. Five homers, four doubles and two triples studded the total of 28 hits.

Pittsburgh and Chicago kept at it in their battle for first place in the National league. The Pirates hit St. Louis pitchers hard and gave them their sixth consecutive beating 14-2. Chicago wound up its home stand by trimming Cincinnati, 8-6. Philadelphia staged a ninth inning rally to beat Boston, 5-4.

NOTES:
Percy Lee Jones, star Cub south-paw, who had a bone splinter removed from his pitching arm several weeks ago, tried out his arm with telling effects against the Reds when he replaced Osborn in the fifth.

Tommy Connolly, veteran umpire of the American league, suffered a broken nose when Todd of the Red Sox threw wild to first base and struck the umpire.

Even then it is not certain the bout will be staged for while promoter Dick Donalds has a contract signed by Clyde Hudkins, brother and manager of Ace, and a telegraphed acceptance from Steve Webster, representing Baker, promoter Humbert Pugasey has the boxers dated for a bout in New York for August 3.

BYRD'S VISIT TO WAR INVALIDS IS CAUSE OF MIRACLE

Paralyzed Veteran is Moved to Walk With U. S. Commander

Paris, July 6—(AP)—Premier Poincare pinned the Legion of Honor cross on the breast of Commander Byrd this morning. The ceremony took place at the ministry of finance. The visit of Commander Byrd and his three trans-Atlantic flight companions to the Premier was brief, for M. Poincare had to yield to the pressure of parliamentary work. The Premier congratulated the aviators on their courage and endurance and the Commander expressed in behalf of his comrades and himself deep appreciation of the warm-hearted welcome they had been accorded.

There was almost a touch of the miraculous in the visit of Commander Byrd and his crew to the Hotel Des Invalides, home of France's war wounded.

Paralyzed Man Walks
For the first time since he was brought down at Verdun in 1918, Captain Charles Legendre, paralyzed French aviator, stood straight on his feet and walked.

"Your courage, despite overwhelming odds, and your splendid exploits have given me renewed courage," Captain Legendre told Commander Byrd. "I will accompany you." He arose hesitatingly, groped a moment and then, with great effort of will, took a faltering step. Another followed, and the war hero, his arm resting lightly on the shoulder of the flier, walked slowly but surely toward Napoleon's tomb.

Tears glistened in many eyes as the little party visited the tomb and then returned to the invalids, where anxious hands pushed a wheel chair forward for Legendre.

Will Leave Saturday
Among those calling on Commander Byrd to express congratulations was Essie McCoy Davis, widow of Richard Harding Davis.

It is announced that the aviators will leave Saturday for Dunkirk, where Byrd will be made a free citizen.

While their sailing date has not been decided it is announced they will not return to Paris after Saturday.

The "America" has arrived at Cherbourg. It took about half the time required to fly across the Atlantic to get it from Ver-sur-Mer. It was towed through narrow lanes. Mechanics are trying to put it into flying order. On certain stages of the journey, it scraped telephone poles and nearly demolished several walls. Its white stars were torn away by souvenir hunters.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARBERRY, an American girl owning considerable property near the little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, but so far she has escaped harm, due to the shrewdness of her cousin and protector, VILAK, who masquerades as her attorney under the name of DAVID VILAK, a serious student of American and Oriental blood, is a student of ornithology. He tries to persuade Elise to leave the country, letting him stay with his friend, LINCOLN NUNALLY, an elderly American chemist, to solve the mystery.

After her two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped, to be found again by the alert Vilak, and another attempt is made on their lives, Elise escapes.

Her departure is prevented by threat of floods. Messengers ride through the countryside, warning the natives that the dam at Avilon has burst. Vilak decides to go to the house of GAYLORD PRENTISS, a recluse and a forbidding man and an enemy of Elise's, whom she suspects of a knowledge of the conspiracy against her.

Nevertheless, she agrees it is their duty to warn him.

Vilak learns that the flood warning was a ruse to get Prentiss out of his house and so informs him. The party is besieged in a small stone tower next to Prentiss' house, by armed attackers. Vilak finally disperses them by dynamiting a dam and causing a real flood. When the water recedes they discover Prentiss has gone.

The next day, TINKY, Elise's little nephew, is stolen again. The trail leads into the jungle. A native reports Prentiss has been seen with a baby. Vilak makes preparations for a long pursuit, possibly of two months, to recover Tinky.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

ELISE turned to Vilak. "A month? . . . Two months? . . ." she repeated. Her words were dull, lifeless. Drearly she resumed her labor.

They continued working throughout the night. Shortly after dawn the puffing Schwartz returned from his quest. He sighed wearily as he plodded up to Elise. "I had found some men, Fraulein Marberry. But not a night had I had. Und vot men. Der good men vill not come. They haf their homes here now and they do not wish to leave. So I must take der rascals, der loafers, der ones who do not work now only because you pay them so much money."

"Three, four, maybe, iss good Indians, fine Indians. Der rest iss I know not vot. Der worst off Porto Verde. I haf get a guide, too. An Indian vot calls himself Atabapo. I do not know him vell. He haf just come to Porto Verde. He iss a Indian from der west, toward Equador, toward Peru. I dinks. A Boro, maybe, maybe a Nhamiquara. He say dat he know der country, and iss not afraid. Maybe he knows it, maybe he does not. But der iss no others. So I can do noddings but to take him. He and der others who mit us go vill be here ven and Don Archer started Friday morning on a sight seeing trip through the east.

Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor and babe spent Saturday and Sunday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Ogilvie, leaving Sunday morning for Mendota where they visited friends.

Mrs. Jerry Tullis is suffering with an attack of tonsillitis at this time. An attack of this kind was well represented at the Fourth of July celebration at Mendota.

The bride and groom—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Zimmerman—who have been on a wedding tour, arrived here at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Kutter, Monday afternoon.

Jerry Tullis was home from Waterloo, Iowa, a couple of days the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Moore and daughter Gwendolyn of DeKalb, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Butler and babe of Dixon visited over the Fourth with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. William Price and family of Calumet City, Ill., visited the first of the week with Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Tullis and family and other relatives here.

Mrs. Cynthia Cook spent a few days last week visiting at the home of her son Lee Cook in Sterling.

Miss Grace Nye of Minneapolis, Minn., was a caller at the home of Mrs. Nettie Cook Sunday.

Miss Leota Archer, who has been visiting friends in Chicago has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cook of Sterling, spent the Fourth with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Merriman and sister Hester of DeKalb spent the day Sunday with their mother Mrs. Leola Merriman. Miss Hester Merriman extended her visit over the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. William Deichong and son Bert of Dixon and wife of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, visited over the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Archer and brother Leslie

Vilak, sitting at the fire to keep watch, was

Joins Mother in Pulpit

"Two is a company, three is a crowd," was the subject chosen for her first sermon in Chicago by Roberta Starr Semple, 16 year old daughter of Almee Semple McPherson, the evangelist who left Los Angeles to "fight the devil for souls" in the Windy city. The closeup shows the young evangelist's bob.

Song Birds at the Parting

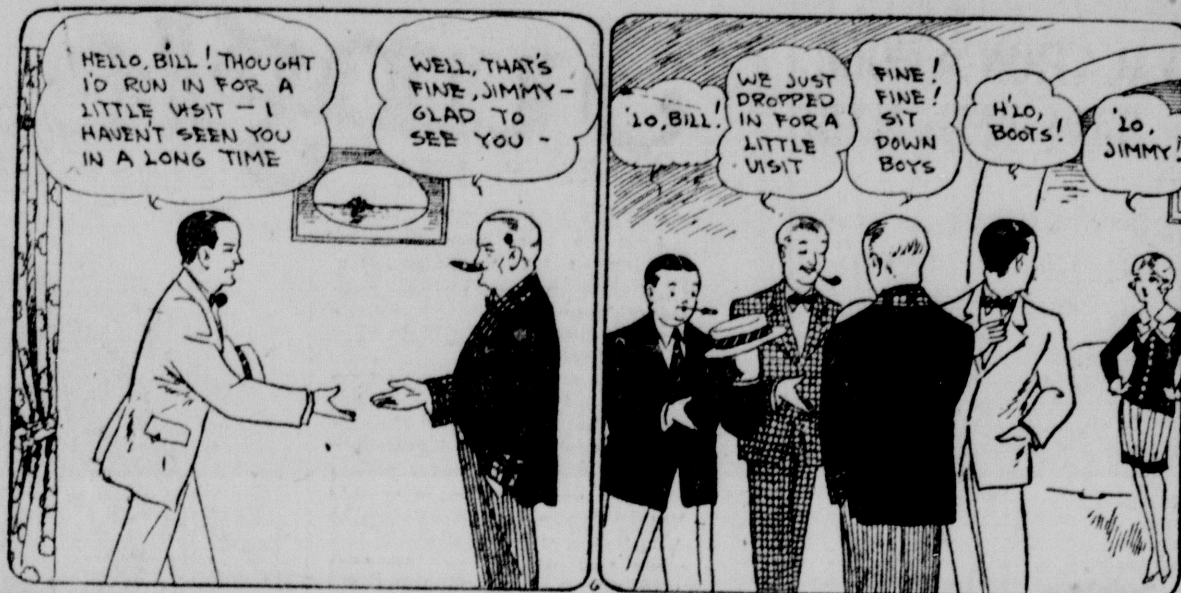

Lucien Muratore, operatic tenor, and his wife, the former Lina Cavallieri, famed both as a singer and a beauty, have applied to the Paris courts for divorce. They were married in 1914. Mme. Cavallieri was first married in 1910 to Sheriff Bob Chanler, who was said to have turned over a large part of his fortune to the singer when they were divorced two years later.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER XXXV

FOR two more days they traveled without seeing a sign of either humanity or human habitation except the sharp machete cuts in the branches and the crushed vegetation underfoot which showed them their course.

Then on the morning of the fifth day out from Porto Verde, on a low mound rising slightly above the level of the forest, they came to what appeared to be a secondary trail coming from a slightly different direction and joining their own.

Here VILAK examined the ground carefully. Between clumps of tall grass he found a number of cigar stubs. They were filled with a cheap, coarse tobacco, rolled by hand. Evidently the smoker had exhausted his supply of papers, for most of the cigars were rolled in bits of newspaper, torn envelopes, and other odds and ends a man ordinarily carries in his pocket.

Quickly VILAK picked these up and deftly unrolling them, spread them out upon a log. He concentrated his attention upon the bits of envelope. A moment later he granted, then extended two of the scraps to Elise. "Look at that," he flashed.

The fragments bore part of an English postmark and the full name of Elise's English foreman who had escaped from the Porto Verde jail after the murder of Tony Barbeta.

When they halted at noon for the midday meal, VILAK distributed rifles to half of the natives who had hitherto been permitted to carry only spears. "We're being watched all the time now," he said to Elise and Nunnally, who had glanced at him inquisitively. "No use worrying about it, but I'm certain it's so. I've heard rustles in the trees three or four times this morning. They were caused by monkeys or we'd have known it by being screamed at, or having sticks and fruit rained down upon us."

That night the guard was doubled. The hidden watchers, however, gave no sign of their presence.

It was almost a week later when the sun was high in the sky that they came within sight of their first Indian village, twenty or thirty reed huts built in the shape of low cones so that in the distance they appeared like great gray anthills.

As they approached, the Tartar-like guide suddenly gave three loud cries and began a long noisy rhapsody in a high-pitched, wailing dialect.

Four warriors of the village came hurrying out from the rush shelters, holding drawn bows. They planted themselves squarely in the path of the newcomers. Completely naked except for a breech cloth and undecorated except for a little striped tattooing around the elbows and knees, they stood rigid, shining bronze statues barring the way.

"Marvelous bodies," VILAK murmured to Nunnally, as the guide continued his shrill oration. "Pronounced Oriental strain in them, too, undoubtedly. Look at the shape of their heads and the slant of their eyes. That tattooing also is absolutely the same as I could show you in a hundred places in the islands off East Asia. Judging by the way they're looking at us, we're the first white men they've seen."

The guide's declamation at length ceased. The headman of the village, a grizzled, withered shell, who appeared as though three centuries had passed over his long gray head, stalked gravely out from the largest hut. Behind him died two enormously fat old women.

He granted to the rigid warriors. Their bows relaxed, they moved off to the wall of the structure from which the headman had come. The chief engaged the guide in a short parley, then convinced that the newcomers' intentions were not hostile, greeted them cordially. Food was brought, swamp-dred, roasted tapir, berries, and set on grass mats.

VILAK responded to the courtesy by presenting his host with a necklace of atrociously colored beads, of which he had been careful to bring a liberal supply.

The headman barked an order; all the women in the village, who had been curiously peeping at the newcomers through the cracks in their houses, ran forward. They began a dance.

They were in a long, compact semi-circle, violently hopping up and down, darting forward and leaping back, all to the accompaniment of a skin drum which a purple-feathered Indian was beating frantically, when VILAK happened to strike a match to light a cigar.

The flare of the tiny flame was as though lightning had struck the assembly. The women ran screaming back to their houses; the soldiers threw themselves flat on the ground, beating their heads at VILAK's feet; the withered chief darted behind a tree.

Seeing the panic, and instantly comprehending its cause, VILAK blew out the flaming match. The chief saw and slowly began coming from behind the tree; the bowmen scrambled to their feet; the women one by one drifted back.

"Lord, what an effect," chuckled VILAK to Nunnally, as the chief advanced with some hesitancy to them. "Silly of me, though. Should have known that practically all the tribes we'll meet are fire worshippers. Commonest thing in all savage life. Undoubtedly never saw a match before. They'll be turning us into gods, and making us eat rancid butter the way they do in Tibet if we're not careful."

The chief warily sat down beside him. VILAK let him feel the box, examine the match itself, then painstakingly demonstrated how the fire was created by striking the one against the other.

The old man grinned, then eagerly followed his example. His delight was unbounded when VILAK presented him with the marvel. The broken line of dancers reformed, the dance proceeded to a furious climax and ended. More tapir and berries were brought.

VILAK now tried talking to his host in the Guarany dialect, which extends like a mother-tongue through most of the savage tribes of South America. Finding himself understood, he inquired whether the Indians had seen any other travelers lately pass that way with a child.

The chief shook his head. His village was a hunting village; regularly all the men went off to the jungle, leaving none but the women and children behind. At these times the women dared not venture far from their houses, and consequently knew nothing of what passed in the nearby forests. The men had just returned from a week's hunt the day before; therefore he could tell them nothing.

The chief asked VILAK his destination. VILAK pointed vaguely off into the direction the trail had been constantly leading. The chief shook his withered head again and grunted. "No go there. Listen me, Bagarundi. Spirits there. No go. Devils there. In valley. Green valley. On mountain. Red mountain. Devil mountain. Kill you. Kill girl. Quick. Too quick. Listen Bagarundi. Bagarundi wise."

At the chief's urgent invitation, they pitched their camp in the village for the night. Then a smudge fire was kindled to drive away the swarming mosquitoes; the old man began droning out the ancient legends of his people to all his visitors who could understand.

A Thousand Miles— Two Thousand Miles —Without Draining!

Motorists everywhere in the Middle West are running up records with Iso=Vis. Thousands of them are writing in surprise and appreciation to the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to tell the good news of Iso=Vis performance.

One motorist calls Iso=Vis a "peace of mind" motor oil. It is a peaceful feeling to know that the motor is perfectly protected by an oil which maintains a practically constant viscosity—that will stay on the job from start to finish—preventing wear and tear in the engine—preventing trouble—making every mile of motoring smooth! Iso=Vis—the constant viscosity motor oil—gives you that certain knowledge.

Iso=Vis is made in different grades—to meet the requirements of every type of engine. Use the grade recommended for your car. Under normal operating conditions the oil level should be checked every 100 miles. Keep the crankcase at least three-quarters full. If this precaution is taken, a complete draining and flushing of the motor oil once each 1000 miles is all that is necessary.

With new cars equipped with effective oil filtering devices, draining once each 2000 miles or more is sufficient!

Iso=Vis costs more per quart but motorists have found that it costs less per mile. It lasts longer and wears better! Taxi companies have found that by using Iso=Vis they are able to reduce repair bills and to cut the cost of lubrication.

You'll appreciate the efficiency of Iso=Vis (30c per quart). Try it once—and motoring will hold new pleasures. Iso=Vis "F" for Fords.
